

Follow that Star, Seaway Valley Singers in concert

WILLIAMSBURG — The Christmas season is underway in South Dundas, and one of the major highlights every year is the December concert of the Seaway Valley Singers.

Under the musical direction of Robert Jones, and accompanied by pianist Margaret Whisselle, the Singers will present the delightful celebration, Come, Follow that Star. The concert takes place on Sunday, December 8, at 3 p.m., at the Christian Reformed Church in Williamsburg.

Dr. Gerry Rosenquist is returning as the MC for this gala event.

The program for Come, Follow that Star will be a mixture of the sacred and secular music of the season. The 42 voice Seaway Valley Singers, whose members are drawn from this area and surrounding regions, will celebrate the time of Advent, the joy of the Jewish festival Hanukka, and perform the much loved carols and popular songs of Christmas.

One special moment for audiences will be a musical combination of Deck the Halls and Jingle Bells featuring two pianos. "Margaret and I will be the four hands," laughed director Robert Jones. Audiences can also expect the pleasure of hearing

Frances Reid perform on recorder or flute for some of the numbers. Guests can look forward to some of the best loved and best known songs of the holiday season at this concert. Traditional favourites like I Saw Three Ships, Quittez pasteurs and Angels We Have Heard on High will segue into upbeat versions of Up on the Housetop.

This is a show that will delight young and old.

Don't miss the chance to truly welcome the joyous season of Christmas by taking in the wonderful music of the Seaway Valley Singers on December 8, in their presentation of Come, Follow that Star.

Tickets are $12 in advance and $15 at the door. Students pay $10; children under twelve are admitted free.
